B.C. resort seeks ski bum with flair for promotion

CONTEST A B.C. ski resort is looking for a ski bum who will brag about the facility — to the world.

The winner of Sun Peaks Resort's I Want to be a Ski Bum contest must be able to ski or snowboard and have the charisma to woo tourists to the resort through a daily blog and updates on Twitter and Facebook.

Resort spokesman Christopher Nicolson says applicants must submit a 60-second YouTube video about why they should be chosen for the three-month gig that starts Jan. 4. He says the resort is expecting thousands of entries from around the globe for the job that will net the winner a season's pass, accommodation, meals at local restaurants, and gear.

The contest closes Nov. 15 and 20 finalists will be chosen Nov. 20, before the winner is announced on Dec. 1. Contest rules are available at snowbumcanada.com.

Raymond Lahey arrives at Ottawa police headquarters Thursday. Lahey, a former Nova Scotia bishop who resigned over the weekend, has turned himself in to authorities after being charged with possessing and importing child pornography. More coverage, page 6.

Bishop surrenders

Turns self in to Ottawa cops following child porn charges

Parishioners at a Nova Scotia archdiocese where children allegedly endured decades of sexual abuse at the hands of Roman Catholic priests were urged to keep their faith intact Thursday as the man who helped to save old wounds surrendered to police on child pornography charges.

Archbishop Anthony Mancini of Halifax appealed to past victims of abuse and parishioners in the diocese of Antigonish after Bishop Raymond Lahey turned himself in to Ottawa police. "We are going through a very painful, contemporary experience of the mystery of faith," Mancini told a news conference in Sydney. "I call on you to be hopeful because we do believe in new life and in new possibilities."

Parishioner John MacEachern said he felt like he'd been punched in the stomach when he learned his bishop had been charged with possessing and importing child pornography in Ontario.

"If it proves to be true, it is just tragic," said MacEachern, a high school vice-principal in nearby Glace Bay.

MacEachern said Lahey was held in wide esteem in the diocese, in part for brokering a $15-million settlement for parishioners who claimed to have been sexually abused by priests in the area dating back to 1950. He called the 69-year-old priest "the face of the settlement" and the person who was going to help the local church move on from the abuse.

In Ottawa, a sombre Lahey climbed out of a black sedan and pushed through a crush of reporters to surrender to the charges that have stunned his flock and shaken an already tarnished institution.

Ignoring questions, Lahey was accompanied by lawyer Michael Edelson, a high-profile criminal lawyer who represented Ottawa Mayor Larry O'Brien when he was acquitted this spring of influence-peddling charges.

Police say Lahey was later granted bail on conditions until his next court appearance on Nov. 4.

Ottawa's first dose of seasonal flu vaccine arrives

TRACEY TONG
tracey.tong@metronews.ca

Flu Outbreak

With flu season not quite here, the first shipment of seasonal flu vaccine has arrived in Ottawa.

At the same time, Ottawa Public Health officials released the schedule for seasonal flu clinics Thursday afternoon.

In accordance with Ontario's approach to flu shots this year, public health is recommending people 65 years and older and residents of long-term care facilities get the vaccine first. Next is the rollout of the H1N1 vaccine, followed by seasonal flu vaccines, to the general population. The province has produced enough H1N1 vaccine for

"We're not seeing the volume that will tell us we're in the middle of it."

Sherry Nigro, Ottawa Public Health

75 per cent of the population, said Sherry Nigro, manager of integration quality and standards with Ottawa Public Health.

In the past week, one resident tested positive for H1N1, and there have not been reports of absenteeism above 10 per cent in schools. This does not indicate that the second wave of the flu is in Ottawa, she said. "It's here in the community, but we're not seeing the volume that will tell us we're in the middle of it."

Starting Oct. 10, there will be seasonal flu clinics for seniors across the city. The rest of the population gets the seasonal flu vaccine after the H1N1 vaccine.

That's not too late to get the vaccine, said Associate Medical Officer of Health Dr. Nadine Sicard. "The peak of the flu season is February, March and even April," she said, "but we're going to experience H1N1 before that."

Councillor hopes for productive civility at Lansdowne consultations

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

Orleans Coun. Bob Monette is hoping to see more civility during the remaining Lansdowne Partnership public consultations.

Monette said Thursday that the aggressive, confrontational atmosphere that caused him to storm out of Wednesday night's question-and-answer session has harmed any genuine efforts at public consultation.

"They have not been very productive so far," he said. "It's fine for there to be an opposition but let others have a say and stop trying to intimidate people."

The question-and-answer sessions added after the first two consultations are a welcome change, said Martin Canning, a volunteer with the Ask Me! campaign.

Still, "people are skeptical if halfway through a process, it changes," he said.

Monette said he had no problem with civilized opposition to the plan, but he draws the line when people start attacking the integrity of city manager Kent Kirkpatrick.

"He's a bureaucrat doing the job that council asked him to do. He doesn't deserve to take that abuse," said Monette. "If people want to give abuse, give it to me or the mayor. We're elected."

There are two more open houses planned for next week — at the Tom Brown Arena on Monday and the Shenkman Arts Centre on Tuesday.

Animation festival draws success from balance: Director

After working for the festival in previous years, local comic artist David Cooper will have a film competing at the Ottawa International Animation Festival for the first time.

The project is a collaboration between Cooper and animator Nick Cross on the video for Danko Jones' song, King of Magazines.

The OIAF, the largest of its kind in North America, kicks off on Oct. 14.

The success of the festival, said artistic director Chris Robinson, has been finding the right balance between independent and commercial films.

Live butterfly show marks 10th year

TRADITION When Ed Bruggink opened the first live butterfly show at Carleton University in 1999, he thought that like the life of the butterfly itself, its popularity would be fleeting.

Ten years later, the 10-day show — now an Ottawa tradition attracting 10,000 people annually — opens at the university's Nesbitt Biology Building Saturday. The exhibit features over 1,000 butterflies of over 30 different species coming from Asia, Africa, Malaysia, Indonesia and Central America.

While the crowd favourite — the enormous Atlas moth — is returning, new species include the neotropical butterfly blue morpho and the orange dead leaf butterfly from Asia.

While the lifespan of the tropical butterfly is very short — about three weeks — people shouldn't feel bad for them.

"They have a great time in here, feeding and mating with no predators," said Bruggink, Carleton's greenhouse manager for the last 28 years. "And they have lots of nectar plants to keep them happy. They're having a great time."

Monumental undertaking

Contest seeks to commemorate navy's history

TRACEY TONG
tracey.tong@metronews.ca

If you were to stand on a full-size version of Marlene Hilton Moore's monument to the Canadian Navy, you would get a sensation of what it would be like "to have a career in the navy."

The monument, which features "three bronze sculptures on a dynamic vessel-like form and a rolling landscape—like a ship on the crest of the wave," shows the danger, the drama and the beauty that is life in the navy," the artist said.

Moore's design with her team was one of five on display at an event last night to let the public view the finalists for the National Capital Commission's Canadian Navy Monument Project.

The national competition for the monument — which commemorates the 100th anniversary of the Canadian Navy in 2010 — was launched in February, said Sylvie Tilden, senior manager, commemorations and public art for the NCC.

The five finalists were chosen from 49 proposals. On Friday, the jury will deliberate and choose the winning design.

Work on the monument will begin next summer, and the monument is scheduled to be completed in May 2011.

The House of Commons voted 144-117 on Thursday against a Liberal motion to bring down the minority Conservatives. Arrest shows border power

Bishop case highlights statutes

The arrest of a Catholic bishop on child-pornography charges highlights the power of border agents to see not just your passport, but the contents of your laptop computer.

Between them, the Canada Border Services Agency and the RCMP enforce dozens of statutes — the border agency at various ports and crossings, the Mounties between ports of entry. The Customs Act gives Canada's border officers authority to examine people's personal baggage and goods upon arrival to, and departure from, Canada, including scrutiny of electronic devices.

"Officers are trained to search electronic media for child pornography, obscene material and hate propaganda," said Patrizia Gioliti of the border services agency. "They receive training to familiarize themselves with computers and other devices and how to quickly identify potential files."

New study fuels battle of masks

RESEARCH Surgical masks appear to protect health-care workers from catching the flu as well as N95 respirators, a Canadian study has found.

The work, published online Thursday, is the latest round in a health-care controversy.

The question: How well do the inexpensive paper masks stack up against the more costly moulded dome-like N95s?

Researchers assigned 446 nurses from eight hospitals in Ontario to either wear surgical masks or fit-tested N95s last flu season.

Fit-tested means the wearer has undergone a process to learn how to form a seal with the respirator around his or her mouth and nose.

Testing showed 23.6 per cent of the nurses who wore surgical masks got infected with flu during the course of the season, compared to 22.9 per cent of the nurses wearing the N95s.

The difference is not statistically significant.

And that means the masks were no more or less effective at preventing infection than the N95s.

How living longer can pay off

LIFE Deferring collection of your Canadian Pension Plan benefits could pay off financially under proposed changes.

But first it's important to undertake the somewhat morbid task of figuring out how long you expect to live.

Currently, the amount a person receives is reduced by 0.5 per cent for each month the pension is taken before age 65. The pension is increased by 0.5 per cent for each month it's taken after age 65.

The changes will increase the early pension deduction to 0.6 per cent per month to a maximum of 36 per cent, while the late pension increase will be 0.7 per cent per month to a maximum of 42 per cent.

Uproar over expenses

MPPs flay WSIB chief, denounce Liberal 'rot'

Ontario opposition MPPs took aim Thursday at alleged expense account abuses by the chair of the Workplace Safety and Insurance Board.

They called it another symptom of the "rot" that has infested the provincial Liberal government in its second term.

WSIB chair Steve Mahoney, a former Liberal cabinet minister, is paid $550 a day for the part-time job.

He billed taxpayers $141,000 last year, "more

"Despite all that public money in his pocket, Mr. Mahoney (also) expensed thousands of dollars for limos until they finally gave him a car (and) meals where he had no meetings." Opposition critic Christine Elliott said in the legislature.

NDP Leader Andrea Horwath said: "Injured workers are living in poverty, living on macaroni and cheese, while Mr. Mahoney is living the high life."

Outside the legislature Labour Minister Peter Fonseca said Mahoney had paid back some of the expenses that were "questioned." THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Evil' captor raped Smart repeatedly, court hears

Kidnap victim testifies at competency hearing

Taking the stand for the first time since she was snatched from her girlhood bedroom seven years ago, Elizabeth Smart testified Thursday that her captor raped her three or four times a day, kept her tied up with a cable around her leg, and threatened to kill her if she tried to escape.

Asked by a prosecutor to describe Brian David Mitchell, the self-described prophet accused of holding her captive for nine months, Smart replied: "Evil, wicked, manipulative, stinky, slimy, greedy, selfish, not spiritual, not religious, not close to God."

Smart, now a 21-year-old college student, gave her horrifying account in federal court as part of a proceeding over whether Mitchell is mentally competent to stand trial.

Death toll in Indonesia expected to top 1,100

QUAKE Rescue workers pulled victims, some screaming in pain, from the heavy rubble of buildings felled by a powerful earthquake that a government official said killed at least 777 people. The UN put the death toll at 1,100 and said it was likely to rise.

The brunt of Wednesday's 7.6-magnitude earthquake, which originated in the sea off Sumatra island, appeared to have been borne by the city of Padang, where a government official said most of the deaths occurred.

The region was jolted by another powerful earthquake Thursday morning, causing damage but no reported fatalities.

More than 500 buildings including hotels, schools, hospitals and a mall were destroyed or damaged in Padang. Thousands of people were still believed to be trapped in the rubble.

The government official told The Associated Press that at least 777 people are confirmed to have died in the quake, with about 440 seriously injured.

Brit drug plan shows results

HEALTH About half of heroin and crack cocaine addicts in England's treatment programs quit the drugs after six months, a new study says.

Experts warned, however, that the danger of relapse means permanently kicking the habit probably requires ongoing care. A senior U.S. White House official said the results validated England's approach to treating drug addicts and called for similar efforts to evaluate American drug addiction programs.

British researchers monitored more than 14,600 patients across England addicted to either heroin, crack cocaine, or both. Heroin addicts were treated with oral methadone for at least six months between January and November 2008. Some patients also received counselling.

Since there is no recommended substitute drug treatment for crack, cocaine addicts only received the psychological therapy. The researchers did not compare the treated addicts to addicts who tried to quit on their own.

After six months, 42 per cent of heroin users reported they had stopped injecting the drug. Among crack users, 57 per cent said they had stopped. About half of the people addicted to both drugs said they had either quit or cut down.

The study was paid for by Britain's National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse. On average, it costs the government up to $7,991 per person per year to provide addiction treatment.

Experts said the results were encouraging, but drug addicts would likely need more than six months of care.

"It is quite possible that many of those with a positive outcome experienced relapse," said Jeffrey Parsons, an addiction specialist at Hunter College in New York who was not linked to the research.

U.S. targeting gun smuggling

HOUSTON A four-month effort to stop the flow of firearms from the U.S. to Mexican drug cartels has helped law enforcement disrupt various gun trafficking rings and gain a better understanding of how these groups try to avoid detection, officials announced Thursday.

Many weapons seized south of the border are traced back to Houston, where 100 agents with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives and other personnel were deployed in April to develop cases on trafficking firearms to Mexico.

ATF Acting Director Kenneth Melson said the initiative vastly reduced a backlog of investigative leads and increased the number of criminal cases in Houston.

International custody battle heating up

American dad says he did nothing wrong

Friends say Noriko Savoie felt trapped — she was a Japanese citizen new to the U.S. whose American husband had just served her divorce papers.

Her disintegrating marriage likely would have ended with little notice had she not fled to Japan,

"So basically she was trapped."

Miiko Crafton, friend

where her ex-husband was arrested this week trying to get the children she took with her into the diplomatic protection of a U.S. consulate.

Noriko Savoie did not have court permission to bring the children to the country where they had spent most of their lives, and Christopher Savoie says he didn't do anything wrong when he tried to get them back.

Court records and conversations with a friend, Miiko Crafton, make it clear that Noriko Savoie was hurt and angry from the divorce and chafing at the cultural differences.

She had no income when she moved to the U.S. in June 2008, divorce court filings show, and appears to have been totally dependent on Christopher still legally her husband but was involved with another woman.

Savoie, who was

Crafton, a native of Japan who befriended Noriko Savoie during her short time in Tennessee, said her friend tried to get a divorce while the couple still lived in Japan, but her husband had refused and later persuaded her to move to the U.S. with the children.

"Everything was provided so she could begin a new lifestyle, but right after that he gave her divorce papers," Crafton said. "So basically she was trapped."

Although financially stable — she was awarded close to $800,000 in cash as well as other support in the divorce — Noriko Savoie was not free to return to Japan. She was given primary custody of the children, but her ex-husband was also awarded time with them.

She felt mistreated by the courts and emotionally abused by her ex-husband, Crafton said.

Christopher Savoie was arrested by Japanese police on Monday as he tried to enter a U.S. Consulate in the southern city of Fukuoka with the six- and eight-year-old children after snatching them away from their mother as they walked to school.

Cheney, FBI interview will go public: Judge

A federal judge ruled Thursday that the FBI must publicly reveal much of its notes from an interview with former U.S. Vice-President Dick Cheney during the investigation into who leaked the identity of a CIA operative.

Cheney agreed to be interviewed by Special Counsel Patrick Fitzgerald in June 2004 during the investigation of the leak of Valerie Plame's identity after her husband publicly criticized the Bush administration. Both the Bush and Obama administrations said they wanted to keep the interview confidential because future presidents, vice-presidents and their senior staff may not cooperate with criminal investigations if they know what they say could become public.

But U.S. District Judge Emmet Sullivan ruled there was no justification to withhold the entire 67 pages of FBI records documenting Fitzgerald's interview since the Plame leak investigation has concluded.

He said that limited parts could be withheld to protect national security and private communications between the president and vice-president.

The U.S. Justice Department told Sullivan in a hearing this summer that if he ordered the documents released, they would appeal and seek to withhold them until the matter is resolved.

The Justice Department declined to comment on the ruling Thursday.

Palestinian Authority rejects UN report

GENEVA Diplomats in Geneva say the Palestinian Authority has withdrawn its support for a UN resolution endorsing a report on alleged war crimes by Israel and Palestinians in Gaza.

condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to discuss the matter with reporters.

Palestinian officials in Geneva could not be reached late Thursday.

Internet trend shocks

InStep

Christine Williams

A disturbing Internet trend called "reaction videos" is exploding in youth popularity. Here's how it works: A person's reaction is recorded while watching some other shocking video of which he/she is oblivious about and then posted on the web.

Reaction is intense, from crying and gagging to rolling on the floor. So no wonder they're popular. The big deal is if you decide to look into what these youngsters are actually looking at to generate such intense feedback.

At least two of these shocking videos have gone viral in popularity. So I opted to do a little research without watching any of them. One was an unedited video leak of the gruesome slaying of an Eastern European man hammered to death and stabbed by some youth. This was a hard-working village man with throat cancer who struggled to support his wife, two sons, one grandchild and a disabled mom. The other viral video showed a trailer of two girls indulging in grotesque pornographic acts of coprophagia.

I was perplexed as to why any person would be driven to watch this stuff or show it to anyone. One youngster showed the pornographic trailer to her unsuspecting grandmother, who retorted in horror that her granddaughter needed help.

Author Anthony Burgess may not have been off track when he wrote his disturbing, futuristic novel A Clockwork Orange in 1962 about a youth gang who rapes, tortures and murders for entertainment. The deadly words "snuffed it" were repeatedly used in this book, bringing to mind snuff films of which one of the sordid viral videos actually was.

When Stanley Kubrick turned A Clockwork Orange into a movie in 1971,

it earned him more than four Oscar nominations: Controversy exploded in England over copycat crimes, which led Kubrick to withdraw his own film from the U.K.

That was then. Now our children are watching real snuff. Although we know copycat crimes are generally committed by those with a history of violence and severe mental disturbance, why create a milieu for such pathologies to flourish?

It's time for all of us to appeal to the timeless conscience within us amid the evolutionary changes of our modern virtual world. If, collectively, we are in danger of losing our conscience along the frantic highway of life, then I can't think of a better reason to risk pulling off to the shoulder and recouping this valuable possession.

Christine Williams is the producer and host of the live current affairs daily talk show On the Line at CTS TV in Burlington, Ont.

Worth mentioning

Banned Books Week marked by live readings

The Grapes Of Wrath was labelled vulgar and pornographic, a dangerous depiction of class hatred. I know Why The Caged Bird Sings was removed from classrooms and library shelves after its 1969 publication, deemed inappropriate for its depiction of author Maya Angelou's rape as an eight-year-old girl.

Then there's Slaughterhouse Five, whose obscenities, violence and unpatriotic portrayal of the Second World War drew fire from worried parents and librarians.

Once silenced, the books were among more than a dozen given live readings this week as part of a series of events marking Banned Books

Week, an annual celebration by the American Library Association.

Banning books or censoring their authors has been practised since the dawn of the printing press and before, and continues today.

"We're certainly seeing increased efforts to remove or restrict books that are aimed for young adults," said Deborah Caldwell-

Stone, acting director of ALA's office for intellectual freedom. "There are parents who believe that young people under 18 shouldn't be having access to books that discuss sex or drug use, or homosexuality, and we understand that."

Who the heck is in charge around here?

UrbanCompass

Steve Collins

When they call this a government town, they kid you not. We're the home of both the Canadian government and the Ontario premier.

Amalgamation at least peeled off the regional layer of government, but that still leaves us under the tangled and overlapping jurisdictions of our municipal, provincial and federal governments, as well as the National Capital Commission, which has just poured cold bureaucratic coffee on the city's transit plan because it includes the use of Crown land for a western expansion of the Transitway. Not so fast, quoth the NCC.

These squabbles are part of the territory here.

When Tamil demonstrators gathered in front of the Parliament Buildings to send a message to the federal government about the war in Sri Lanka, it was the City of Ottawa that picked up the costs of policing the protests — and immediately started demanding the feds pay some of the bill.

And then we have the recent pronouncements of former mayor Jim Watson, now provincial minister of municipal affairs. This week, for example, he pointed out potential security problems with the proposed downtown transit tunnel since it has to be dug near federal property, including the office of the prime minister. Our current mayor, Larry O'Brien, was most annoyed at the minister's intervention.

Back in Toronto, they're accusing Watson of conflict of interest because of rumours he's interested in running for his old job as mayor back here.

Still with me? Well done. During our last municipal election, it was the federal government, in the person of cabinet minister John Baird, who withheld federal funding for light rail, enabling O'Brien to campaign against the rail plan and into office. This year, Baird was dragged into testifying at O'Brien's criminal trial, along with provincial Tory Lisa McLeod.

Things can get tricky enough around here even without significant involvement from other levels of government, as we've seen in the Lansdowne Live consultations. Here, the City of Ottawa is running the show, but its proposed public-private partnership with the Ottawa Sports Entertainment Group is muddying the waters.

Some think city staff are crossing the line between informing the public about the plan and trying to sell it. At the first of the open houses, OSEG reps were issued name tags bearing the City of Ottawa logo until someone pointed out the minor impropriety and the badges were replaced with more neutral versions.

It's all part of the fun in Canada's quintessential government town.

Stocks slide on weak numbers

North American stock markets kicked off fourth-quarter trading with a bad stumble Thursday as the latest batch of American economic data revived doubts about the strength of an economic rebound.

The S&P/TSX composite index was hit particularly hard by a sharp selloff in the mining and energy sectors and tumbled 323.2 points or 2.84 per cent to 11,071.76.

New York's Dow Jones industrials dropped 203 points or 2.09 per cent to 9,509.28 after the Institute for Supply Management reported that its September index for the U.S. manufacturing sector fell to 52.6 from 52.9 in August, sharply lower than the expected 54 reading.

It was the second dismal report on U.S. manufacturing in as many days. The Chicago Purchasing Managers Index, a snapshot of American manufacturing in the Midwest, slipped back into contraction in September. The drop in the ISM manufacturing index ended eight straight months of gains. But analysts pointed out the sector was still well above 50, which still signals growth.

Bloggers trash 'house party' in Windows 7 promotional video

TECH You almost have to feel bad for Microsoft. The software maker isn't known for hip marketing, and now that a Windows 7 video has hit it big online, people are laughing at the company, not with it.

Microsoft hired House Party Inc. to bring its latest operating system into living rooms ahead of the Oct. 22 launch. House Party helps companies get in front of real people by supplying materials and vetting volunteer hosts for product-themed parties.

In a YouTube video created for the campaign, called "Hosting Your Party," two men and two women reflect on their own Windows launch party experiences while preparing food platters. Chummy laughter, overacting and knowing smiles abound as they dish out advice.

Online news sites and bloggers latched on to the painfully earnest production. A parody emerged in which someone bleeped out references to Windows 7, making the whole thing sound dirty. The original video has logged more than 800,000 views.

AUTO In Canada, Ford and Hyundai emerged as the two clear winners among the major automakers in September sales, while General Motors, Chrysler, Honda and Toyota continued to see their sales shrink. September was also the fourth month in a row that Ford had increased its sales year over year, the company said.

New oilsands project coming?

The oil-focused firm that will emerge from EnCana Corp.'s split is proposing to build a new oilsands project that will use a combination of steam and solvents to draw the bitumen to the surface — the first commercial-scale project to use this method.

Calgary-based Encana said Thursday it expects, through the soon to be created Cenovus, to file a regulatory application around the middle of 2010 for the Narrows Lake project, which is just northwest of its Christina Lake operations in northeastern Al-

MPs suggest Olympic logo looks like Conservative symbol

From psychedelic to simplistic — and, perhaps, a little too familiar.

The uniforms that Canadian athletes will wear during the 2010 Olympics were unveiled Thursday, featuring plain, old-fashioned designs that reach into Canada's past, which will no doubt be seen as a welcome departure from the bizarre designs worn last year in Beijing.

But one of the new logos was prompting some decidedly non-Olympic comparisons, with Opposition MPs in Ottawa suggesting it smacks of a Conservative conspiracy and others noting similarities to an iconic Canadian military symbol.

The logo in question appears on several shirts and sweatshirts in the Hudson Bay Co.'s Team Canada line, with a thick black letter C surrounding a red maple leaf in front of a white background.

At first glance, the logo looks remarkably similar to the Royal Canadian Air Force's historic emblem, still used by the air force today, which features a dark blue circle around a maple leaf.

The Conservative connection is more tenuous: the political party's logo is a stylized, slanted C around a maple leaf.

A stretch for some, but close enough for inflammatory political fodder in the House of Commons.

"Here is another embarrassing example of crass politics," Liberal MP Hedy Fry said during question period shortly after the uniforms and their retail counterparts were released on Thursday.

The suggestion was promptly dismissed by Conservatives — and was met with laughter from the woman who oversaw the designing of the uniforms.

"That was a first for me," said Suzanne Timmins, the Hudson Bay Co.'s fashion director, who chuckled when asked about the comparison with the Conservatives. "Certainly, that wasn't any intention on our part, not at all."

Liverpool looking to rebound against Chelsea

SOCCER Stung by strong words from managers Carlo Ancelotti and Rafa Benitez, Chelsea and Liverpool go head to head on Sunday each knowing that a defeat could mean losing ground on leader Manchester United.

While defending champion United is confident of beating Sunderland at home and stretching its league and cup winning streak to nine, third place Liverpool has to overcome the shock of a 2-0 Champions League loss to Fiorentina which had Benitez blasting his players.

"I have never seen this team of mine struggle as much as we did in the first half," the Liverpool manager said after Tuesday's loss. "I was just so disappointed because we made so many mistakes and were made to pay for them."

The Liverpool players said they had not seen Benitez so angry about a performance. "I think this was the most annoyed we have seen the manager, but we were all annoyed," said leftback Fabio Aurelio.

Team captain Steven Gerrard said the team had to improve quickly before taking on Chelsea.

"It was a really disappointing night for us. We just didn't turn up and we were second best all over the pitch," he said. "Now we've got a massive game at Chelsea on Saturday. We have to get this result out of our system quickly."

Josh Gorges and Carey Price helped the Montreal Canadiens steal two points from their oldest rivals.

The defenceman scored the winner with 12.8 seconds left in overtime Thursday and Price made 43 saves as the Canadiens stunned the Toronto Maple Leafs with a 4-3 victory.

The Habs were badly outshot and thoroughly outplayed through two periods, but found a way to hang around and pull out the victory. They got some help from former teammate Mike Komisarek, who was in the penalty box for two Montreal goals.

Brian Gionta, Travis Moen and Glen Metropolit also scored for the Canadiens.

Matt Stajan, with two, and Alexei Ponikarovsky replied for Toronto.

Celebs back Chicago 2016 Olympic bid

OLYMPICS Want a picture with Oprah? She's holding court in the restaurant. Interested in talking to a Dream Team player or a Perfect 10? David Robinson and Nadia Comaneci are roaming the halls. How about a meeting with the American first lady? If you're an International Olympic Committee member, it's a good bet Michelle Obama could work you in.

With the hours dwindling before the 2016 Games are awarded, Chicago leaders were doing another hard sell Thursday, trying to win over a few more voters and hold onto those who already like them.

"Everybody is thinking positively about their own city," said Anita De Frantz, one of the United States' two IOC members. "The question is, can anybody make a better case for a better city?"

Chicago may be considered the favourite going into Friday's IOC vote, but plenty of cities that were sure things have wound up watching someone else celebrate. Not to mention that Rio de Janeiro has a compelling argument, asking the IOC to take the games to South America for the

30-minute vote

In 30 minutes, it will be over. Years of preparations, arm-twisting, sweet-talking and hopes will be rejected or rewarded Friday when the International Olympic Committee votes to select the host for the 2016 Games.

Chicago, Rio de Janeiro, Madrid and Tokyo — one by one — will be eliminated in a tense half-hour of successive rounds of secret balloting until one stands alone.

first time while Madrid has the backing of former IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch, still an influential figure. Tokyo has pushed the safety and financial security aspects of its proposal.

"There are four great choices," Robinson said. "Obviously, we're here to talk about the merits of Chicago."

The first lady spent a second day of one-on-one meetings with IOC members in a private suite at the official hotel, breaking only to attend the opening ceremony at Copenhagen's dazzling opera house. Wearing a sleeveless, apricot-coloured dress, she greeted a steady stream of members and other VIPs.

Russian swimming great Alexander Popov, now an IOC member, spent several minutes chatting with her. After getting his picture taken with Obama, he was ushered off to meet with talk show star Oprah Winfrey and Mayor Richard Daley.

The sit-downs and meet-and-greets may be brief, but they give the first lady an opportunity to share her story — she grew up on the city's South Side, near where most of the venues would be. She also assured IOC members of Chicago's sincerity to use the Olympics as inspiration for children who might not otherwise have reason to dream big.

"She really is amazing. Besides the significance of an African-American president and first lady, she's impressive at any level," said David Robinson, who admitted he was a little star struck after meeting Obama on Wednesday afternoon. "With her education, with her dignity, the way she carries herself, she's tremendous."

Great One escapes our expectations

Field of Play
Scott Russell
metronews.ca/fieldofplay

Another NHL season dawns and the brightest light in hockey's history is nowhere on the horizon. Wayne Gretzky has had his fill of living up to our expectations of him. Who could blame him? What was once a joyful expression of his magical powers has become just another case file in a bankruptcy court.

How did this happen? When Gretzky was an Edmonton Oiler no one played hockey with his intuition. He was a savant, the kind of ethereal being who knew how to make all the right things happen. He was a sorcerer on skates who captured our undying affection.

But Gretzky was sold to the Los Angeles Kings and became the rainmaker for an icy game in the dry sun belt of America. The expectation was that he could single-handedly cultivate a Canadian obsession in a place where few knew or cared where Canada was.

This is where the Great One's powers began to elude him. The Kings never won the Stanley Cup and he moved on. Gretzky went to St. Louis and New York and eventually retired after a journey which included his ignominious exclusion from a shootout at the 1998 Olympics where he might have delivered Canada the gold medal.

But we expected that Gretzky could, like soccer's Pele, be an ambassadorial figure once his playing days were done. Wayne Gretzky, we thought, could be hockey's wise sage.

It hasn't turned out that way yet.

Like many gifted artists, he became convinced that his abilities could be transferred from his palate, in this case the ice, to the boardrooms and eventually behind the bench.

Gretzky did help Canada to a gold medal at the 2002 Olympics but the players like Iginla, Sakic and Lemieux were the ones who really made it happen.

And then he failed miserably as the coach of the Phoenix Coyotes. We unfairly expected him to be great in that role too — a common mistake because rarely do great players make great teachers. It's a vastly different skill set.

So once again Wayne Gretzky is gone from centre ice. His reasons are probably numerous and complex, but one has to believe he's dog-tired of trying to live up to our expectations of him.

Scott Russell is the Host of CBC Sports Weekend seen Saturday afternoons. He has covered professional and amateur sports including nine Olympic games and numerous world championships.

Evans brings edge to Raptors

NBA On a team that had been lacking toughness, it doesn't get much tougher than Reggie Evans.

Three days into training camp, his new Toronto Raptors teammates have the bumps, bruises and scratches to prove it.

"A guy like that, if you're not playing as hard as you need to, you're probably going to get hurt, to put it quite frankly," said Raptors all-star forward Chris Bosh. "You're going to get an elbow or something because he's going to play hard, and if you're really lagging and not playing hard, bad things happen. He makes you elevate your game."

The Raptors traded sharpshooter Jason Kapono to Philadelphia in the off-season for Evans to inject some grit into a lineup that had little, and the 29-year-old's hard-nosed style is already rubbing off on his teammates.

Evans' new teammates haven't let him off easy either, and that's a good thing for a guy who doesn't mind the rough stuff.

Reggie Evans, shown here with the Philadelphia 76ers last year battling for the ball with Orlando's Marcin Gortat, has elbowed his new teammates into playing a tougher style.

"A lot of the guys are being really aggressive. Bargnani, he's going really strong and not complaining. Those are good signs," Evans said. "Players are coming back at me aggressive and I love that. It makes me better. I can't play with guys who are playing weak. They hit me really tough, they hit me with their shoulder, they push me in my back, so they're coming back at me. It's all love. I like it."

AL Central still up for grabs

BASEBALL The American League Central showdown didn't decide much.

The AL Central-leading Tigers had a chance to clinch their first division title since 1987 in the finale of the four-game series. But their bats were quieted and their pitchers got roughed up in a three-run third inning and a four-run eighth.

The tightest race in baseball won't be decided until this weekend — or early next week if a tiebreaker is necessary.

SKIING Swiss skier Didier Defago suffered a broken right thumb Thursday and is expected to miss the opening

The Invention of Lying

PHIL BROWN

No one makes awkward discomfort as painfully hilarious as Ricky Gervais. His work in The Office and Extras has made him a comedy icon, but his alienatingly realistic comedic voice has also made him a tough sell in Hollywood.

However he's too big a star for them to ignore, so Gervais has managed to sneak into Hollywood with a pair of high concept comedies: Last year's sadly underrated Ghost Town and now The Invention of Lying.

Both are hysterical and give Ricky Gervais a chance to show off his chops to a wider audience, even if they don't quite represent the self-titled little fat man with the pugnosed face at his best.

The Invention of Lying is ingeniously simple concept created by unknown screenwriter Matthew Robinson who enlisted Ricky Gervais as close collaborator.

The film takes place in a world in which humanity hasn't developed the ability to lie (e.g., commercials involve company employees begging you to use their products).

Then a sadsack Ricky Gervais comes along and invents lying. Suddenly he's able to do anything because no one doubts his lies. It all leads to a satirical religious allegory when Gervais invents the concept of "the man in the sky" as a deathbed comfort and becomes an accidental messiah.

The movie is silly fun with a brain, populated with a cast Hollywood stars anxious to work with Gervais (including Jennifer Garner, Tina Fey, Christopher Guest, Edward Norton and more).

The concept is smart, the laughs are unrelenting, and writers actually have something to say beyond the jokes. In short, the film is about as good as mainstream Hollywood comedy gets. Sure the love story is predictable and the movie doesn't mine

CHRIS ALEXANDER

With its slow motion tableaux of marauding, gore-caked ghouls running down hapless victims to the timeless battering of Metallica's For Whom the Bell Tolls, Zombieland's opening credits sequence is perhaps one of the best in the history of pulp cinema.

The fact that the film actually lives up to much of that promise is exhilaratingly happy news to report.

This wild, messy and downright hilarious comedy-shocker understands that to blend humour and horror properly, you have to allow the terror to be real and simply allow the characters to react to it.

Zombieland does it smashing, offering tons of outrageously bloody attacks juxtaposed with a central boy-meets-girl story that's as urgent as anything John Hughes penned in his prime.

In a world gone mad, eternally nerdy Columbus (Jason Eisenberg) has learned to survive based on a series of self-made rules, the likes of which are playfully illustrated (complete with heaving, on screen text) throughout the film's running time.

While battling his way across the living dead littered landscape, he meets leather-clad tough guy Tallahassee (Woody Harrelson, miming Clint Eastwood and John Wayne outlaw clichés to grand effect), a sexy teenage drifter (Emma Stone) and her bratty 12-year-old sister (Abigail Breslin).

As the motley crew drives their stolen Hum-mer east toward an abandoned theme park that's supposedly zombie free, people are double-crossed, many cannibal corpses are dispatched in disgusting ways and sweaty-palmed love blossoms.

Lots of critics are lazily comparing this to Simon

Pegg's U.K. zom-com Shaun of the Dead, but outside of the zombie apocalypse angle, the two pics couldn't be more different. Shaun was never scary and treated its zombies as slapstick fodder but in Zombieland, the walking (and running, and sprinting) dead are truly terrifying and never the source of cheap amusement.

Tight, taught, relentlessly violent and gory but never nihilistic or depressing, Zombieland is 82 minutes of concentrated, sick, cinema bravado, a flesh-eating, knee-slapping and nail-bit-ing good time.

Professional agitator
Michael Moore is back with his patented brand of satirical documentary. Moore has been cinema's biggest anti-business advocate for 20 years and today his reheated opinions are more relevant than ever.

Moore's rallying cries against corporate America's undying greed and the potential collapse of the U.S. economy have proven to be frighteningly true over the last year, and no one was more qualified to make a film about the current recession. Of course, it's still Michael Moore and his heavily opinionated approach will irritate everyone who has dismissed him before.

Like all of his previous work, Capitalism: A Love Story offers audiences an episodic analysis of his chosen subject.

Moore combines disturbing footage of families forced out of their homes (in one case even paid to destroy their own belongings), interviews with depressed victims (including a woman who discovered her husband's employer cashed a massive insurance settlement after his death, but shared none of it with the family), comedic stunts, ironic stock footage, and plenty of voiceover to paint a disturbing picture of the current economic climate. It's easy to criticize the film for being scattershot and heavily opinionated, but that seems unfair. All documentaries present the filmmaker's point of view (as soon as you bring a camera into a room, you change the situation) and at least Moore is honest about it.

 Michael Moore brings his brand of heavily opinionated documentary-making to Capitalism: A Love Story.

His movies are cinematic essays exploring specific issues and the techniques he's most heavily criticized for are always accepted in the printed word.

Capitalism: A Love Story is far from perfect. As a filmmaker Michael Moore is undeniably indulgent and self-aggrandizing, but that's just to be expected at this point. The bottom line is that he was able to take a fairly dry economic analysis and transform it into a movie that is hilarious, compelling, entertaining, touching and vital.

Given the depressed state of the global economy, someone had to make a movie about it and no one could have done it better.

 Halifax native Ellen Page stars in Whip It.

Whip It unconventional, affable

Whip It

Director: Drew Barrymore

Stars: Ellen Page, Kristen Wiig

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Drew Barrymore's affable directorial debut features Ellen Page as Bliss, a small-town Texas girl whose path to self-actualization takes the form of a roller-derby track.

The character of the snarky non-conformist yearning to escape her backwater environment is, of course, a cliché, but Whip It finds other ways to be unconventional. While Barrymore clearly identifies with her heroine's frustration, she refuses to condescend to Bliss' protective, beauty-pageant-advocating mother, played by Marcia Gay Harden not as a dreamstifling harpy but a sharp, sympathetic woman acting with her offspring's best interest in mind.

From this empathetic, even-handed starting point, Whip It skates briskly through its crowd-pleasing paces. Page is less mannered than usual, and Kristen Wiig, Juliette Lewis and Barrymore herself contribute vivid, funny turns as the veteran skater girls who teach her the tricks of the trade.

Barrymore has chosen her technical collaborators well, especially editor Dylan Tichenor. And she's got an ear for good — as opposed to really irritating — pop music: The hipster-friendly soundtrack peaks with the use of Jens Lekmans' ecstatic Your Arms Around Me over top of what may be the fall's sexiest love scene.

'I am the worst giggler': Akerman

Canadian actress gets her laughs in Couples Retreat

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Malin Akerman split her childhood between Toronto and Sweden before becoming a model at 17, which eventually led to a career in acting.

Akerman's profile has been steadily rising with high profile roles in films like The Heartbreak Kid and Watchmen. She has split her time between comedies and drama, which the young actress relishes.

"I don't have a preference to be honest with you. Comedy and drama are so different and I enjoy doing everything as an actor," Akerman told Metro. "As long as it's a challenge, I'll try it all. Bring it on."

Akerman's latest venture is a project from Vince Vaughn and Jon Favreau (who burst onto the screen with Swingers in 1996). The pair co-wrote and star in Couples Retreat, a comedy about a group of married couples who embark on a tropical vacation only to unwittingly end up in a weeklong series of skill-building exercises and therapy sessions.

For Akerman the film was an opportunity to work with two comic minds that she has long admired.

"I heard that there was a film being made with Vince Vaughn and I knew that they were looking for their girls," said Akerman. "I got my hands on the script and thought it was a really great concept."

"It was nice to find an adult comedy about relationships where I could actually relate to the characters. Then I got a meeting with our director Peter Billingsley and saw pictures of Bora Bora all over his office. Once I saw that I thought, "God, I have to be a part of this."

Malin landed the job and soon found herself on a plane to Bora Bora. Unsurprisingly the idyllic location suited the actress well.

"Everywhere you looked there was beautiful turquoise water, palm trees, and beaches. We stayed in huts where you could jump off of your balcony into the Pacific Ocean. It was kind of a depressing place. I'd much rather be in a cubicle in an office building," joked the actress. "No, it was insane. I worked in paradise for three and a half weeks."

Beyond the tropical location there was still a film to be made and one starring some pretty sharp comic minds. This led to a great deal of improvisation on set, which Akerman enjoys.

"I've always liked improv. I think as long as you know your character and your goal in the scene, improv is easy. Especially when you're working with masters like Vince Vaughn or Jon Favreau. Once they start going at it, you just want to sit back and enjoy the show."

Of course, not knowing what those actors would say caused another challenge for the actress.

"I am the worst giggler. You don't want to ruin somebody else's take, but when you're working with this group of people it is not easy to keep a straight face," says Akerman. "I'll felt so bad because I just couldn't do it."

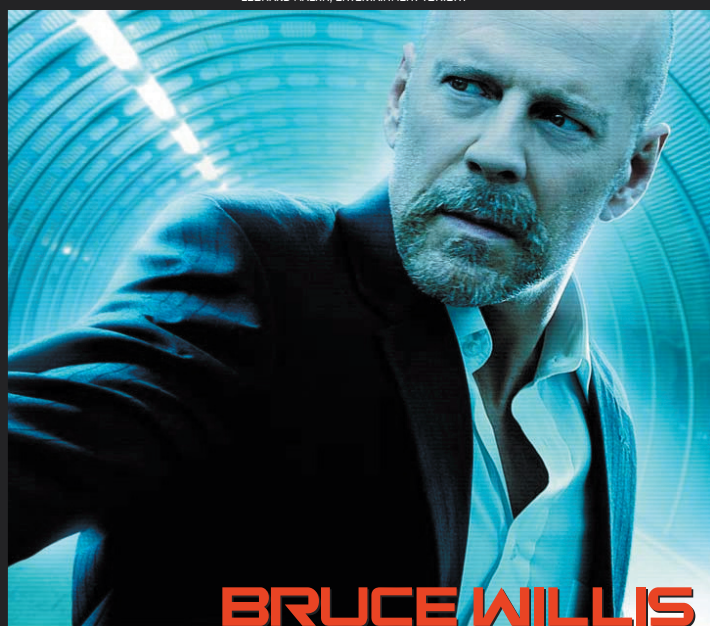

Audiences should struggle to control their giggling fits as well when Couples Retreat opens next week.

It's punk, it's power, it's women's roller derby

InFocus

Richard Crouse

metronews.ca/infocus

This weekend Drew Barrymore makes her directorial debut with Whip It, the story of a young girl who finds the antidote for her small town blues on the roller derby track.

Barrymore's movie delves deep into the murky world of women's roller derby, but it isn't the sport's first big screen treatment.

In the early 1970s UCLA student Barry Sandler saw his master's thesis, a screenplay called Kansas City Bomber, become a Golden Globe-nominated movie starring Raquel Welch. She plays a single Mom rollerderby queen (Jodie Foster is her daughter) who has an affair with her boss and a skating showdown with a rival.

The 1970s were the height of roller derby's popularity but the sport made a comeback early in the millennium. That return was chronicled in Hell On Wheels, a documentary about a women-only Roller Derby league in Austin, Texas.

Ain't It Cool says this inspirational movie has "the kind of twists, drama, cat fights and compound fractures that only happen in real life."

Maybe that explains why roller derby is popular again. Sure, the action is wild and wooly and it has a punk rock attitude but its recent recognition has to do with the people and girl power.

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the El Channel; mrcraos33@hotmail.com.

The Resistance grows

New album from U.K.'s Muse tops charts in 15 countries

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

When Christopher Wolstenholme answers the phone, he's noticeably excited. Muse's bassist just found out that his group's new album, The Resistance, topped the charts in 15 countries, including Canada.

"This was totally unexpected," he says, still shocked by the news.

Hitting number one in so many places is a challenge for any band, but for Muse, whose epic blend of grand guitars and over-the-top electronics isn't the most mainstream stuff, it's been even more difficult.

Wolstenholme thinks that people finally understand the band. "A lot of people who listened to our past albums felt there was too much on them and they went in many different directions," he reveals. "But people know what they're getting now."

And what they're getting is even more outlandish this time around. While the album is mostly filled with complex keys, soaring Bono-like vocals and chugging riffs, the last three tracks are, literally, a symphony.

Titled Exogenesis, this three-part song collection sounds like a sci-fi symphony, complete with strings, piano and weird electro sounds. It's surprisingly infectious — lead singer Matthew Bellamy sounds like a cross between Roger Waters and Thom Yorke — and while it's definitely grand, it's not as bloated as you might think.

"Initially I was like, 'what is this,'" says Wolstenholme. "It wasn't until the end that I understood what we were doing. It was up to us to trust that Matt had a vision for it. But it turned out great — it's sometimes the stuff that's more challenging that works the best."

Part of the bassist's skepticism likely came from the fact that this wasn't a song meant for a band. Wolstenholme says that while they've used strings before, if you took the extra instruments away the tracks could always be played as a three-piece.

"It wasn't like that with the symphony," he explains. "The band is almost secondary — you can take us away and the song would still work."

"A lot of people who listened to our past albums felt there was too much on them and they went in many different directions. But people know what they're getting now."

Christopher Wolstenholme

Besides being ambitious with their music, the band's lyrics are some of the most intriguing of their career. Themes include political change, constitutional reform, and revolution. There's also a love story running through the disc.

The tracks aren't preachy, but Wolstenholme admits it's impossible not to be influenced by politics.

"With 24 hour news channels, it's hard to avoid political images," he says. "But the way Matt played it this time was as an emotional response to political events rather than being political. On the last album the songs were more direct."

With their messages in tow, the band is about to embark on a lengthy tour that'll take them around the world. But now that they're topping charts all over the place it seems they'll have to add a few more places to their itinerary.

"I'm excited to go to Australia," he says. "The weather is great."

Alice in Chains resurface with new singer, album

AC/DC did it. So did Black Sabbath. Van Halen did it, but not everyone was happy. INXS didn't do it. Nor could Queen. And Motley Crue probably shouldn't even have tried.

The examples of rock bands who succeed in a second wind without their original lead singers are few and far between. Alice in Chains is hoping they'll beat the odds.

The Seattle-based rockers this week release the 11-song Black Gives Way to Blue, their first CD since the 2002 drug overdose death of their lead singer, Layne Staley.

"The loss of Layne is an unfillable hole. We're not trying to fill that space. There's a space that remains empty and we take it with us — that's his, always," says co-guitarist and co-vocalist Jerry Cantrell. "We're creating new space around it, that's all."

The quartet includes Mike Inez on bass, Sean Kinney on drums and new guy William DuVall, who takes on co-guitar and co-vocalist duties.

The album cover shows an unsentimental, almost medical drawing of a human heart, and it doesn't take the band long to acknowledge their personal pain.

"Time to start living, like just before we died," go the lyrics to All Secrets Known, the opening song. "There's no going back to the place we started from."

Kinney and Cantrell say they felt they had to address their loss early on the album.

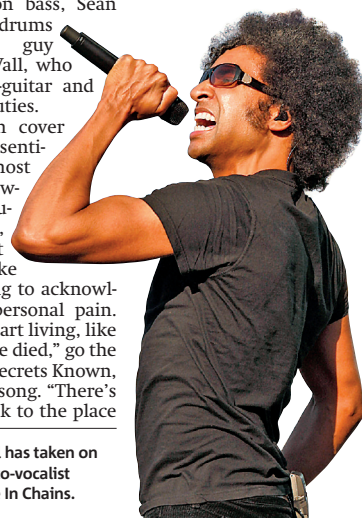

"You figure you get that out of the way," says Kinney.

"Lay it out there, man," agrees Cantrell. "We haven't pulled any punches before."

The rest of the album explores the themes of persistence and mourning, with the poignant title song coming at the very end, featuring an appearance by Elton John.

While that pairing might seem odd, the band explains that the first concert Staley ever attended — at age seven — was by John and he remained a huge fan. The Rocket Man graciously offered to lend singing and piano duties in tribute.

"That was the cherry on top of everything," says Kinney. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

illScarlett is up to the task

Ska-punk quartet finally realizes maximum potential on fourth album 1UP

KEITH CARMAN
for Metro Canada

We've all heard that old axiom relating the blessed moment when everything comes together perfectly, creating a sense of cohesion or success. It's usually referred to as how the third time is a charm.

Such isn't always the case though. In regards to Mississauga-based ska/punk quartet illScarlett, it took a little bit longer than a tertiary kick at the can to find that sweet spot where intent meets ability. While never at a complete loss or hampered by lack of aptitude, the band feels that over the past eight years and three albums, they've had to continually hone their craft until finally realizing maximum potential with fourth full-length 1UP (Sony Music) released earlier this week.

"This album is really a point of pride," beams vocalist and guitarist Alex Norman moments after jetting back in the midst of a U.S. tour to perform for a packed hometown crowd on 1UP's official street date. "While we still love our other albums, this one really has our fingerprints all over it."

Keen to utilize another adage, Norman refers to 1UP as illScarlett's "baby," a comment not altogether unheard of from any artist releasing their blood, sweat and tears unto the world for whatever praise and/or criticism it generates.

Yet he quickly notes that the band — completed by guitarist Will Marr, drummer Swavek Piorkowski and bassist John Doherty — is still very pleased with their past releases. 2007's we've been able to represent who we truly are on our own terms," Norman continues. "We took a full three months off to write and record this one. I'd say we actually got to create it, where our other records were made in the middle of playing, touring and whatever. Because we were so interactive (1UP), it was a lot of fun and I think that reflects on how it comes across."

At that, Norman is quite direct about exactly how he expects listeners to perceive the band's inherent mix of ska's upbeat, pleasant atmosphere with the expediency of punk rock's pacing on 1UP. He goes so far as to offer some insight on why the album's 12 tracks have a decidedly sharper feel this time around, something he anticipates will direct listeners' immediate comfort with it.

"It's raw," he declares with finality. "It's live. Some songs aren't perfect. There might be a moment where the tuning or the timing is off. That's because we didn't want to lose that human element; that feel. We didn't drive for perfection or stew on it because music is meant to be fun. We weren't so uptight about it. We had fun; were more comfortable instead of putting everything under a microscope. I think albums are more enjoyable when they're natural."

Nick Cave sprawls out on the leather couch in my office in his bespoke Savile Row suit. Sans the moustache, he looks a lot less intimidating than I thought he would. I can relax a little.

Cave, the balladeer leader of the Birthday Party, the Bad Seeds and Grinderman, is also a prolific writer, having penned screenplays (including the rejected Gladiator II, which he wrote at the request of his friend, Russell Crowe), various essays and two novels. He's here to talk about the second one.

"(The Death of Bunny Munro) was a screenplay. John Hillcoat (Nick's director friend) wanted a small English film about a travelling salesman. So I went away with that and came back a couple of weeks later with a script — and it never got made. But I really loved the story, so I thought, 'Why not make it into a novel?'"

Bunny, our, er, hero, is a man of, um, appetites and, as Nick says, "pursues them with conviction." After his wife commits suicide whilst he's out philan-dering, Bunny plunges into even greater self-destruction while also trying to care for his nine-year-old son, the very brave Bunny Jr. Things do not go well. Everything is written in present tense to enhance Bunny's spiral towards his inevitable doom.

The story and its characters are profane and extremely funny (except maybe to Avril Lavigne; you'll have to read the book to understand why). The dialogue is something you might hear late at night from road-weary rock musicians on a tour bus. In fact, that's where much of the book was written, between shows on a Bad Seeds tour. The entire first chapter was written on an iPhone. Everything else was written in long-hand.

"The delete key is dangerous," Nick says. "I gave up writing on a computer altogether because of the delete key because I would write a song that I thought it was good. The next day I'd be in a bad mood and just ... delete. I've lost so much that way."

The book is also available as a fascinating iPhone app and a couple of audio books. The super-deluxe version not only features Nick reading the book but elaborate scoring and production. Listen to it on headphones in the dark and the 3-D effects are almost hallucinatory.

Back from the brink

You Say Party! We Say Die! make up, record new album

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

It's not easy being an over-worked Canadian indie band. Just ask You Say Party! We Say Die! whose members nearly came to blows on their last tour.

"One half of the camp was on one side of the street and the rest of us were on the other side," says the Vancouver-based band's lead singer Becky Ninkovic. "It took a day before the manager could even get us in the van together."

It all started to fall apart on week 14 of their 16-week European tour. Ninkovic got sick, and without any breaks in the schedule, she had to push herself night after night. "It led pretty much to a total breakdown," she says.

Part of the problem was that the band, who despite three well-received records was still just an independent act trying to make a name, took every opportunity to play. That led to a packed itinerary and a rock 'n' roll lifestyle that they couldn't keep up with.

"There's so much alcohol and drugs pushed on you," says Ninkovic. "You're sleep deprived, malnourished — you have to learn how to take care of yourself, but unfortunately some of those lessons can only be learned the hard way."

You Say Party finished the tour, but when the band members got back to Canada they went their separate ways.

Ninkovic retreated to her house where, she says, she underwent a sort of rebirth. "I had to break away from the people I knew because I was feeling empty of love," she explains. "I came to place of brokenness and that's when the power came in. I had epiphany after epiphany that brought me to a place of love."

It turns out the whole band was going through something similar. So it's not surprising that when the group member did eventually reunite they created an album all about love. The title, XXXX, is Ninkovic's code word for love and warm feelings of connectedness find their way into much of the lyrics.

Despite the band's previous problems, the group sound more together than ever. The new disc is more focused and polished than other efforts, and while the infectious dance-punk has been toned down, it's still a catchy head-bobbing affair.

Ninkovic's vocals are also as strong as they've ever been thanks to a vocal coach who helped her retrain her pipes. "I worked with this amazing lady who really helped me go on a journey in finding a deeper place inside myself to sing from," she explains.

Now, with a new album, the grind starts again. However, don't expect another near-brawl between the band.

"We know there's a breaking point now," says Ninkovic. "And I don't think we'll ever be yes people in quite the same way again."

He's a workaday kind of celebrity

Lou Diamond Phillips relishes his role in new Stargate

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

Lou Diamond Phillips says he's happy to be called a "working actor."

"I take it as a compliment," says Phillips, 47, whose current project is Stargate Universe, the latest spinoff of the popular sci-fi institution.

"I see myself as an employable actor who's comfortable working in every facet of the industry. That said, I also have four kids who continue to eat every day."

Phillips' recent credits include the movie Che, a touring stage production of Camelot, and the reality series I'm A Celebrity. Get Me Out of Here.

Stargate premieres tonight at 9 on Space

The new Stargate series is about a group of soldiers and scientists who find themselves lost in space on board an alien ship. Phillips plays Col. Telford, a no-nonsense soldier who proves a nemesis for the rest of the cast.

Don't blink, though: Phillips appears only briefly in the pilot.

"I think they call it a recurring guest-star role. I kind of work my way into the show slowly over time," he says. "But I really love working with an ensemble like this. You can do great work in smaller doses. You still have time to have an actual life."

Phillips says his experience on I'm A Celebrity. Get Me Out of Here, for which he camped in a Costa Rican jungle with a group that included actor Stephen Baldwin and fashion fixture Janice Dickinson, was "as uncomfortable as it appeared on TV." "Some people assumed we'd go back to the hotel every night, but it wasn't true," he says. "It was jungle, 24-7. I still have the scars from the bug bites."

Diamond cherished the chance to work with the late Patrick Swayze on his final series, The Beast. Swayze died last month of pancreatic cancer.

"He was a real accomplished actor and a real man among men," says Phillips.

Heartland heartthrob is back in the saddle

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

HORSEPLAY Playing hunky stable boy Ty on CBC's horsy drama Heartland has added a new element to Graham Wardle's career: fan mail. And it's not just the usual preteen girls who are crushing on the young actor.

"It's pretty wide-ranging," says Wardle, 23, in a break from filming the ranch-based series in Alberta.

"I get emails from fans in their 20s. The ones in their 40s send large envelopes so you can send them back photos. And the six-year-olds like to draw pictures and make bracelets for you. It's definitely a new part of my life."

Wardle's growing heartthrob status will get a boost in Heartland's third season, which begins Sunday. Ty's ongoing romance with Amy (Amber Marshall) will heat up. However, this being a family series, Ty will still spend most of his nights bunking alone in the barn.

"They'll be together and working on the relationship in this season," says Wardle. "But I'm not exactly sure what the writers have planned for them and how that whole sleeping-in-the-barn plays out."

A native of Mission, B.C., the actor says working with horses is really a matter of being prepared.

"The horses know what they are supposed to do. The actors just have to get it right in a couple of takes, or the horses get bored."

Wardle says he knew nothing about horses before taking on the role of Ty.

Fortunately, that unfamiliarity was just what the role called for.

"Ty was a city boy," he says. "So I got lucky. Unlike the other actors, I got to learn all about horses on camera."

Curb your enthusiasm, it's not a real Seinfeld reunion

You know you want it. You may never have said out loud that you wanted a Seinfeld reunion but why would you, cool Seinfeld fan that you are? You know TV reunions are lame. You also know the Seinfeld gang is way too cool to stoop to doing one.

But now, Larry David has reunited his four Seinfeld stars for a sassy story line on his current series, Curb Your Enthusiasm.

Larry David has reunited his Seinfeld stars for his new series.

He has recaptured the twisted genius of the old show and reignited it, fresh and funny and safely removed from any danger of lameness.

The made-for-TV version of himself that he portrays on his HBO comedy (a cavilling provocateur named Larry David, who formerly produced a show called Seinfeld) sets the plan in motion for a Seinfeld reunion on Sunday's episode of Curb.

But not before resisting.

"You know those reunion shows, they're so lame," TV-Larry scoffs when the idea is first bought to him.

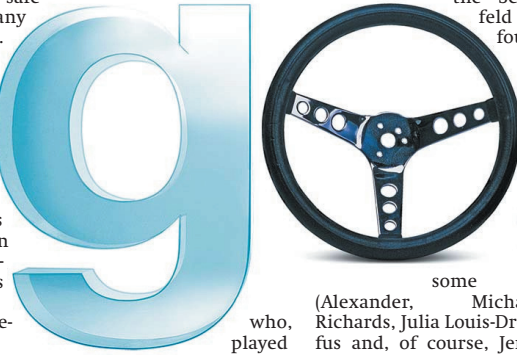

Then, befitting TV-Larry, when he eventually consents, it's not for any logical good reason.

His ulterior motive: To win back his estranged wife, Cheryl (Cheryl Hines). He means to cast her, a would-be actress, as the ex-wife of George Costanza (the character piece.

It finesses a hilarious clash between David and the Seinfeld four-(Alexander, Michael Richards, Julia Louis-Dreyfus and, of course, Jerry Seinfeld), reconvened 11 years after the Seinfeld finale with hilarious, organic aplomb.

"Why isn't it lame?" says TV-Jerry when TV-Larry coaxes him to say yes.

"Because we'll do it in a way that won't be lame," vows TV-Larry, flush with his covert Cheryl-targeted agenda. And he does! They do! THE ASSOCIATED PRESS who, played by Jason Alexander, always served as David's Seinfeld dopelganger).

Granted, Pirandello would be easier to sort out than this double-helix of parody and truth. Doesn't matter. What matters is, this particular Curb — the third episode in its triumphant seventh season — is a compact master-

Ex-prosecutor says he lied in Polanski doc

COURTS A former prosecutor says he made up a story he told a film crew about advising a judge handling Roman Polanski's sex case to send the director to prison.

In Roman Polanski: Wanted and Desired, David F. Wells is depicted as conferring with a trial judge more than 30 years ago about Polanski's case. Wells said in the documentary that the judge took his advice in deciding to renege on a plea bargain and give Polanski additional prison time.

Switzerland on Saturday. In France, several government officials who had initially rushed to Polanski's defence were being more cautious on Thursday, stressing that the renowned filmmaker is not above the law.

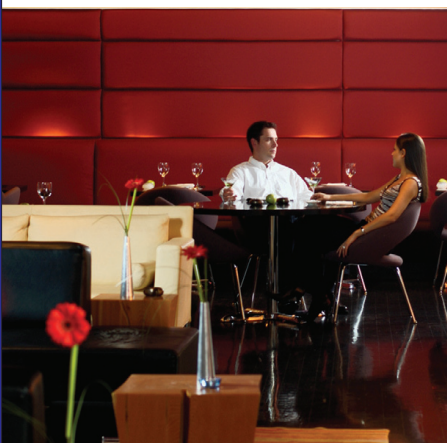

Wells, who retired more than two years ago, did not handle Polanski's case but was assigned to the courtroom where it was heard and had frequent interactions with the now-deceased trial judge Laurence J. Rittenband.

"They interviewed me in the Malibu courthouse when I was still a DA, and I embellished a story," Wells said about the film crew in an interview with The Associated Press Wednesday. "I'm a guy who cuts to the chase — I lied. It embarrasses the hell of me."

Wells said he was sorry about making the comments for the documentary. "I cost the DA's office a lot of money and aggravation over this," Wells said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Winfrey and Perry talk about Push and Precious

MOVIES Oprah Winfrey was so taken by Sapphire's novel Push that she read it more than once.

Yet even though the talk-show host has made best-sellers of unknown books, Winfrey didn't think even her staggering influence could make Push — the story of an obese, illiterate black teen who suffers unspeakable abuse — something that millions would want to read.

So when Winfrey heard producer and director Lee Daniels had adapted Sapphire's book into the acclaimed movie Precious, with an all-star cast including Mo'Nique, Mariah Carey, Lenny Kravitz and others, she was so impressed that she decided to lend her coveted endorsement to the film by signing on as its executive producer, along with hit filmmaker Tyler Perry.

In a joint interview, the two spoke about why Precious moved them, what message it sends and why more stars should pay it forward.

AP: In an age when the world now sees images of African-American young women such as Sasha and Malia Obama, why is it still important to tell the story of girls like Precious?

WINFREY: For as many stories as there are hues and colours and variations of colours in the African-American race, this is just one. I feel about this story the same way I felt about The Color Purple. It is now 24 years ago that we did that movie. This feels like a modern-day Color Purple. Precious feels like a Celie who lives in Harlem.

PERRY: This story has not been told yet and it is still going on. It is still present in our society and I think that somebody had to do it.

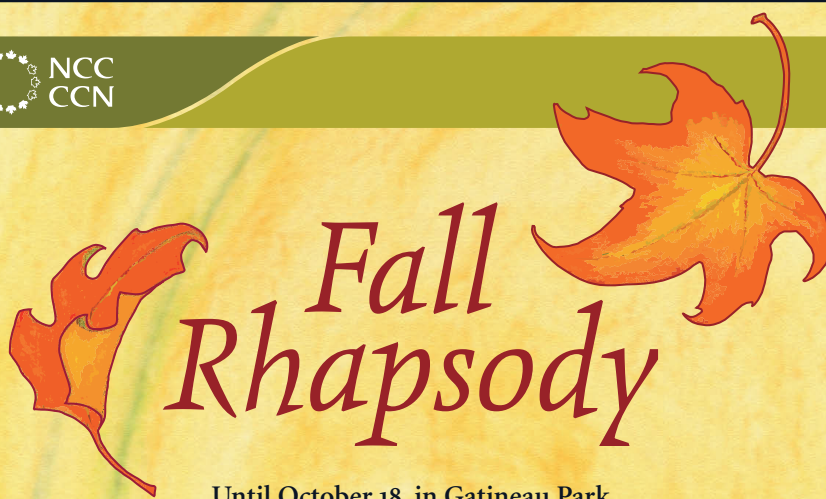

AP: You're both successful. That being said, what makes you want to continue to give back to others when you could easily just focus on your own projects?

WINFREY: One of the reasons why I am still doing what I am doing and we remain the No. 1 talk show for the past 24 years is because I stay connected to the essence of who I am. I make a living out of being myself. You can't turn your back on who you are nor where you came from.

AP: Oprah, you said this movie split you open. What about it resonated with you?

WINFREY: What struck me is that you can live in those circumstances and still find hope. You can't do that on your own. Somebody has to show it to you. For me it was teachers. That is why I love the character Ms. Rain (played by actress Paula Patton) because Ms. Rain allowed her to see that in herself. Nobody can make you see it.

Twain to carry torch

Singer will bear Olympic torch through Timmins

Shania Twain will carry the Olympic torch through her northern Ontario hometown of Timmins.

The pop-country superstar says the honour "is certain to be one of the most memorable experiences of my life."

Twain says on her website that she will carry the flame through the city on Jan. 1, 2010 as part of the Olympic Torch Relay.

The high-profile appearance comes as Twain prepares for a career comeback after her much-publicized break-up with music producer Robert (Mutt) Lange last year.

She's also set to appear on American Idol as a guest judge on the reality singing competition.

Twain said in a release that she is honoured to be a torch bearer for the 2010 Winter Olympics, which run Feb. 12 to 28 in Vancouver.

"I am proud to have been presented this unique opportunity and privilege and look forward to sharing the pride with my hometown and fellow Canadians as we are all proud of our country's chance to host the upcoming Winter Games," Twain said.

"I have a tremendous respect for the hard work, dedication and talent of the world's greatest athletes and will humbly carry and pass on the Olympic torch with a special pride for my country's Olympians. I am grateful for this special gift of participation in carrying the flame that represents such an incredible spirit of sportsmanship and excellence and wish all the athletes of the 2010 Winter Olympics courage, strength and triumph during the Games."

'A dangerous game'

EXTORTION CASE A lawyer for John Travolta testified Thursday that he warned a former Bahamas senator she would not get away with an alleged scheme to extort $25 million from the movie star.

Attorney Michael McDermott said the defendant, Pleasant Bridgewater, contacted him by telephone and demanded the money on behalf of a paramedic who had treated the actor's 16-year-old son, Jett, following a seizure that led to his death.

The pair allegedly threatened to go to the media with a consent form that the actor signed to have his autistic son taken to an airport and flown to the U.S. for treatment. Travolta later changed his mind and Jett died at a local hospital Jan. 2.

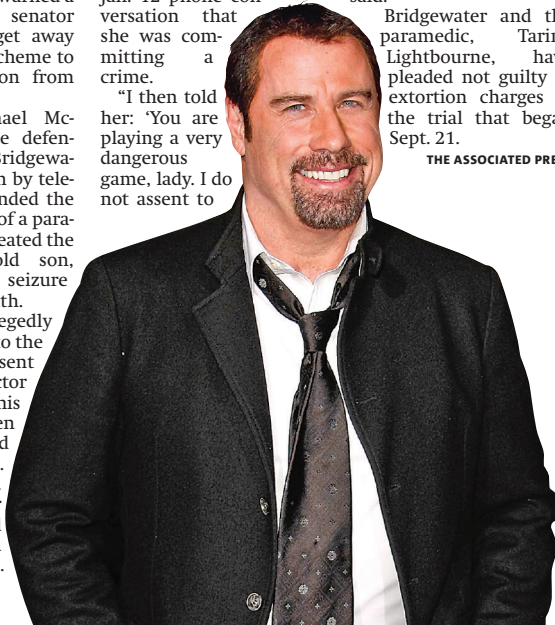

McDermott said he told Bridgewater during the Jan. 12 phone conversation that she was committing a crime.

"I then told her: 'You are playing a very dangerous game, lady. I do not assent to your demands. I will go to the police,'" McDermott said.

Bridgewater and the paramedic, Tarino Lightbourne, have pleaded not guilty to extortion charges at the trial that began Sept. 21.

The former Charmed star has split from director Robert Rodriguez for the second time since they got engaged in October 2007.

They have yet to release a statement explaining the reason for the break-up. The pair met in 2007 when the 36-year-old actress starred in Rodriguez's film Planet Terror.

After a whirlwind romance, Rodriguez divorced his wife of 16 years and proposed to McGowan. The pair split less than one year later, only to reconcile after a few months apart.

They were reportedly planning to wed this year.

Watson can't shake press

THIS IS THE IVY LEAGUE Harry Potter star Emma Watson isn't having the easiest time adjusting to college life in the U.S. And obnoxious Harvard students aren't helping.

Watson recently travelled to Boston for a football game between Harvard and her Brown University, only to have her visit chronicled by student publication the Harvard Voice that had promised to "stalk" the actress, posting Twitter updates and photos online, according to Page Six.

Watson ended up attending the game flanked by security.

Winehouse's love messages

FACEBOOK CONFESSIONS Divorce doesn't seem to be stopping Amy Winehouse and Blake Fielder-Civil from expressing their love for each other — over Facebook.

The troubled singer sent her ex-husband a message recently reminiscing about old times and saying she loved him, according to the Sun. Fielder-Civil replied in kind, then in a separate message announced he'll be appearing on British cooking show Celebrity Dine With Me.

Apparently this was news to the show's producers, who tell the newspaper, "It would be a great story, but I'm afraid he isn't lined up to do the show."
